

Finance and Corporate Transactions

Even in the absence of regulatory action, regulatory matters loom large over decisions made by global companies. That's particularly true in international commerce, where multiple rules apply even in the United States, and more may be waiting across borders. High-dollar transactions like mergers and acquisitions, financing, restructuring, international transactions, and more require care. The cost of a misstep can be high, not only in regulatory sanctions but also to a company's brand and reputation.

Expert Guidance

Eren Lawyers guides clients through a spectrum of government and corporate transactional matters. Our guidance draws on our substantial experience as former federal regulators, as well as careers spent in global commerce law. We offer knowledgeable advice on any legal and business issues that affect our clients' bottom lines, including:

- Business negotiations, deals, and transactions
- Mergers, acquisitions, investments, and divestitures
- Project financing
- Debt finance and credit agreements
- Restructuring and debt recovery
- International trade and transactions
- Shareholder agreements
- Business interactions with China

We represent our global clients in applications before all federal agencies whose work touches on international business, including but not limited to:

- Matters before the Office of Foreign Assets Control
- Many other financial and trade regulatory agencies
- Credit and guarantee applications at the Export-Import Bank of the United States

Client: 0105 (Polembros Shipping)/Matter: 001(US Economic Sanctions and Related Matters)

- Insurance and financing matters with the U.S. International Development Finance Corporation (formerly the Overseas Private Investment Corporation),
- Bids and proposals with the United States Trade and Development Agency
- Loans, guarantees, insurance and other interactions with the United States Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation

We offer unparalleled knowledge of federal regulations as they connect to global business. All of our attorneys have spent their careers in global trade law and regulation, and two are former regulators from the Office of Foreign Assets Control, which regulates U.S. businesses' interactions with nations, organizations, and people sanctioned by the United States. No matter how complex the regulatory landscape that confronts your business, we can offer knowledgeable guidance and a steady hand.

To succeed in the global marketplace, you need to understand the legal landscape in which you're operating. The Eren Law Firm offers knowledgeable guidance. To speak to us in confidence about your needs, contact us for a consultation.
